NEWEST COMEDY SCORES BIG HIT

MARGARET MAYO'S "BABY MINE" EXCRUCIATINGLY FUNNY.

CONSUELO BAILEY THE STAR

Otis Harlan as "Jimmy Jinks" Keeps Audience in Perpetual Good Humor—Plot is Original.

"Baby Mine" sailed its way into the hearts of a sympathetic and admiring audience at the Myers last night. As a matter of fact, baby didn't smile, but the audience did, during the first act. Then they laughed, quietly at first and then uproariously, wholeheartedly, for in point of originality and mirth provoking qualities, Margaret Mayo's comedy has yet to meet its peer "Baby Mine," or rather "Babies Mine," is not an infant mine, its a great full grown, adult mine of pure fun and capable of supplying thousands with real, unrestrained laughter, especially when Consuelo Bailey and Otis Harlan make up their minds to be funny and they have almost unlimited opportunities in Miss Mayo's farce.

From the first curtain, when Zola Hardy, Consuelo Bailey, is discovered sobbing in her home at what she terms her young husband's petty jealousy, until the final scene when she finds that the trisyllable which she had supposed to be a curse, has really been a blessing in disguise, there is not a dull moment, for the plot is really startlingly original and with the cast that Wm. A. Brady has secured, vastly effective. Not that the play has anything so disturbing as a moral, for the whole motif is rather flippant and a direct affront to T. H.'s cherished ideal of a true American wife, but there is an undercurrent of true wife-love under the apparent flippancy.

To those who were unfortunate enough to miss the play last night, a short summary of the plot is not amiss for it shows that even a woman playwright can attain the distinction of evolving an original comedy and also possess the humor to make it a success. Zola Hardy, the young wife of Alfred Hardy, a successful business man, has the devoted love of her husband, but he is essentially a father and there are no children to bless their home. Then again, Zola laments with a friend of the family, Jimmy Jinks, who, and her jealous husband discovers it. Then there is a scene and after mutual recriminations, during the course of which it becomes plain that all of Zola's woes, formerly so effective are fruitless, her husband leaves home.

Apparently the breach is unbridgeable, but with the arrival of Aggie Jinks, Jimmy's wife, a beautiful plan to bring the lost hubby home is evolved. After a suitable interval, Jimmy is in velle Hardy that he is the father of an heir, one adopted for the occasion, for as Zola says, "It's too late now" to do anything else. The plan works perfectly, except in one respect. Hardy in his joy, arrives too soon, he had chartered a special train. In his eagerness, and Zola and her friend find themselves with the baby still on the way from the maternity hospital in Jimmy's charge. Here the difficulties come thick and fast. Jimmy has trouble getting the child for its mother changes her mind and the messenger must needs turn "baby snatcher" to deliver the goods.

The mother however, proves obstinate, so Jimmy, while the fond father is kept from the nursery by maternal forces, secures one of the wash woman's newly arrived twins and attempts to make the change. The attempt is unsuccessful, so Hardy, to his unshared joy, finds himself the father of twins. There is now no way out of it, so Jimmy is forced, after many arguments, to secure the other twin in order that the first horned baby can be returned to its mother who is frantically searching. Hardy finds that the news is being broken to him gently and that there are triplets. His joy is unconfined but Zola is heartbroken for it seems that her husband loves only the babies, the "horrid, red worms."

Three proves to be the limit for after an exciting scene, in which the real parents secure their offspring, Zola's deception is made plain and she is left to tell the "whole truth" an assertion, which, according to her husband, always precedes the most plausible and white-fibby explanations.

There are but nine characters in the comedy, but they are all good. To use a much overworked term, the four principals are "very" good. "Very" is an unsatisfactory term, for it can not express Miss Bailey's fascination or Otis Harlan's humor. Miss Bailey, according to the press agent stuff, is one of the most beautiful actresses on the American stage. The audience last night endorsed the popular verdict. In addition, she is an accomplished actress. There are few flaws in her portrayal of the pleasure loving, baby loving Mrs. Hardy. Miss Mayo swings the spot light on Zola Hardy's real self when Hardy, in revolt, exclaims apropos of her remembrance of the days of poverty through which they had passed, that "she had used those trousers to settle every crisis in our lives." The garment referred to was one that had served for many months and had finally needed first aid at Mrs. Hardy's hands.

It was Otis Harlan, however, who furnished the majority of the laughs. Jimmy Jinks is a "goat," as Mr. Harlan was the "goat." His true status can be determined by the heartfelt exclamation and shows that he was indeed a model husband. "Every time you have it," he exclaims, when his wife hits upon a new plan, "I do it." It was Jimmy who stole the babies, who reviled after each theft, who took the blame for the gradual additions to the family and who, there is no other way to express it, was the "goat." Mr. Harlan in his latest role, will long be remembered by Janesville theatre goers. The remainder of the cast was well balanced.

Taken all in all, the plot, accessories, principals, "Babies Mine" deserves the distinction that has been accorded it. It is a humor "well" done, the plot only a little bit less provoking. To the extremely sensitive, some of the remarks bordered on the danger line but judging from the applause, the prudishly inclined were in the minority last night.

Perhaps, Miss Mayo has taken a liking at the American man. Hardy demands a baby and hates the burlesque fibbing of his wife. In the end, he is brought home and remains, while the babies in which he has taken such pride are shown to have been borrowed simply to deceive him. But he stays and Zola begins again to "tell the real truth." The inference is obvious.

Even the babies were almost real. That is a mere detail but it shows that not even the details were slighted in "Baby Mine."

THEATRE

"St. Elmo" Tomorrow.

The woman with a past has been a familiar subject dealt with by play writers for many years with more or less disagreeable effect. "St. Elmo" presents a man with a past, and his redemption at the hands of one of the sweetest little heroines of the stage makes a production that loses none of the force of the unpleasant plays but leaves the spectator with a feeling that he is better for having witnessed the performance.

Following closely the lines of Augusta J. Evans' successful novel of the same name, "St. Elmo" presents a little wildflower of a girl who hears almost the first unkind words in her life from the lips of St. Elmo, the misanthrope. A series of disasters transfers the innocent girl of the woods into the splendid household where St. Elmo's word is law.

She loves him and remains true to her love through countless temptations. St. Elmo fights against his love for the girl. He feels her faith in every way. He plunges into more desperate affairs than ever but cannot escape the girl's steady influence for good.

A more powerful series of situations than is presented by the play could not easily be imagined. It provides the right kind of a problem play.

This splendid attraction will be at the Myers theatre next Wednesday, matinee and evening.

The Boy and His Dad.

A boy who has the brotherly interest of his father is lucky. Sometimes a wild lad does not seem to have much in common with his father and it will be the mother's task to discover something which they can do together—play dominoes, chess, read the same book or anything to give a kindred sympathy.

To Feed Wild Birds.

Mrs. Harbrough Sherard, a Virginia woman who now lives in England, has formed an association of young people interested in birds, called the Uncle Dick society. The purpose of the society is to furnish food and water for wild birds, especially in the season when provisions are scarce. Last December Mrs. Sherard was given to birds in Buckinghamshire and Northamptonshire, at which the children acted as hosts. Meat bones and coconut shells containing tallow were fastened to the trees and shallow dishes containing seeds and water were placed in the ground. Thousands of birds are said to have flocked to these parties. The organization is reported to have more than 5,000 members.

How Matches Are Made.

Certain kinds of matches are shaved with the grain from sawed blocks; others are cut both ways by saws. In still further varieties the blocks are balled to make them cut easily. By some machines a boiler or steamed log is revolved on its own axis, and a shaver the thickness of a match is cut round and round. This shaving is at the same time cut into lengths and split into match sticks. It may be said that there is hardly a limit to the varieties of methods employed. Round matches are made by forcing them through discs.—Harper's Weekly.

OHIO POLITICS CENTER OF NATIONAL.

At left, Senator A. J. Beveridge. Below, Republican nominees for governor, Warren G. Harding.

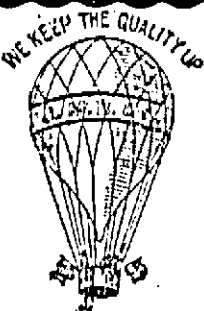

Will President Taft's home state endorse his candidate for governor or swing to Judson Harmon, the Democratic governor, with presidential aspirations?

This momentous question will have to be decided in November. The situation is especially interesting among the state political lights. Nominee Harding is basing his hopes of carrying the Republican standard to the highest state office largely on the national issue of upholding the administration of Ohio's favorite son.

So evenly are the parties divided that 50,000 voters hold the balance of power and with insurgency so active there is no guessing at the outcome.

Senator A. J. Beveridge, insurgent leader, is out after re-election. His success will depend entirely upon the political complexion of the next legislature.

"LIVE WIRES"

Employees of the Wisconsin Telephone Company are all charged with pride in their work.

We have often told the public that it is a part of the broad policy of the Wisconsin Telephone Company, and of the whole Bell System, to encourage initiative, cultivate esprit de corps, and to give capable employees opportunity for advancement in the telephone business. A recent experience goes to "make good" such professions.

In December last we offered to employees, men and women in all departments, prizes for the best practical suggestions for improvements in apparatus, accounting and operating methods. The announcement said the offer was: "To encourage the co-operation of employees in advancing the business of the Wisconsin Telephone Company along the various lines of its operation."

A jury of five heads of departments has just made the awards, fourteen in all. The first prize, $25.00, was for a proposed improvement in the method of erecting aerial cables. Second, third and fourth prizes were awarded aggregating $30.00. Ten other prizes of one dollar each were given in acknowledgment of worthy suggestions of minor character.

In all 126 suggestions were received, covering a wide range of subjects, and several were from district managers and others, not included in the terms of the contest. The interest shown was a significant evidence of the spirit of pride and enthusiasm in their work which pervades the entire Bell System. Our employees are of the sort who feel the responsibilities of their duties and are anxious to keep the company's service up to the highest standards. There are none but "live" wires in our organization. Telephone Talk No. 8, 15.

COMMITTEE WILL PROBE DEEPLY

SENATOR BURROWS ORDERS MEETING OF LORIMER INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.

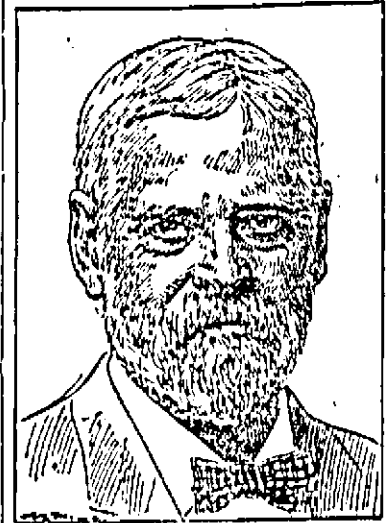

MEET AT CHICAGO SEPT. 20

Inquiry into Charges of Fraud in Connection With Election of Illinois Junior Member of Senate Will Be Thorough and Sweeping.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Sept. 12.—The investigation into the election of Senator William Lorimer to the United States senate will begin on Tuesday, September 20, at Chicago, according to the announcement made by Senator Julius C. Burrows, chairman of the senate committee having the matter in charge.

Members of the committee have been summoned by Senator Burrows to be in Chicago on that date ready to serve until the matter has been probed to the bottom.

Probe to Be Sweeping. The investigation to be conducted by Senator Burrows will be one of the most sweeping ones ever made into the election of a legislator.

"Every phase of the question will be looked into and nothing will be left undone to reach the bottom of the affair. It is my desire to conduct the inquiry just as rapidly as possible," stated the senator when asked about the investigation.

Senator Burrows plans to remain in Chicago until all available testimony has been secured and the decision of the committee will be made, he states, as soon as possible after all of the testimony has been secured.

Next Congress to Get Report.

It is the senator's plan to have the work of the committee finished before the next session of congress begins.

Whether Senator Lorimer will be allowed to retain his seat in congress depends entirely upon the report to be made by the special committee. Senator Burrows heads and the action the senate takes upon its report.

SHAKE-UP IN WESTERN UNION IS RUMOR.

President Theodor N. Vall.

Wall street is rife with rumors regarding an extensive upheaval in the management of the Western Union Telegraph company, which would place St. Vall, president of the American Telegraph & Telephone company, at the head of the telegraph corporation, to succeed President Robert C. Clowry.

At the main office of the Western Union President Clowry declined to make any statement. President Vall of the telephone company, which corporation recently absorbed the Western Union, admitted that some time ago President Clowry had expressed a desire to shift the burden of responsibility to some one else who might be selected.

This statement seemed to lend credence to the report, although President Vall was careful to state he knew of no plan on foot at the present time to effect such a change. It was learned, however, that, whether or not President Clowry leaves, there is to be a thorough shaking up throughout the country. The reorganization plan is said to be so far-reaching that even the operators themselves will tell the effects.

Within the last two weeks there have been numerous conferences at the general offices which have been attended by official and heads of divisions from all over the country.

As a result of these meetings it is now said that a number of drastic changes in the physical operation of the telegraph lines will be put into effect during the coming week.

here to frame the party platforms and to reorganize their state committees. Contests are on in both parties for chairman of the state committees.

The prohibition question promises to be the only bone of contention in the construction of the platforms and the indications are that the leaders of both parties will avoid making it an issue if possible. The democratic platform convention will probably endorse ex-Governor Folk for the presidential nomination in 1912. The platform will make a general attack on the national administration, the tariff and Cannon.

The republican platform will commend the tariff and the Taft administration, but will probably refrain from endorsing Cannon. As a state issue the republicans will assail the senatorial districting of Missouri.

HERO PLUNGES INTO CREEK

Brave Man Saves Woman From Drowning, but Spoils His Nice Clean White Uniform.

New York.—Unquestionably Tony Cammeria is a hero. He is a double-dyed hero, for he not only saved a woman from drowning the other day, but he jumped into Coney Island creek to do it. And not only that, but he wore the white uniform of a member of the street cleaning department at the time, and his uniform will never be white again.

Mrs. Mary Smith, thirty-five, went boating on Coney Island creek with John Braun, who has reached the mature age of sixty. Braun had an idea that he could catch some crabs, and pursuant to said idea he upset the boat while trying to handle the lines.

Mrs. Smith went overboard with her mouth open, and got a draught of Coney Island creek water, which acted the same as poison. Braun managed to get hold of the boat and kicked himself to a bulkhead at Fifteenth street, where he hung on, yelling for help.

Tony Cammeria, following his vocation and a big boom, was at work close by. He heard Braun's cries, ran to the creek, saw Mrs. Smith disappearing for the third time, and plunged in. She was unconscious when he dragged her out, but the doctors at the Coney Island hospital revived her later and she will be all right when she gets the fluid that permeates Coney Island creek out of her system.

BAD TEETH MAKE MANY ILLS

So Declares Dr. Thaddeus P. Hyatt of Brooklyn at Dental Hygiene Conference.

New York.—At the dental hygiene conference and exhibit in the Metropolitan building Dr. Thaddeus P. Hyatt of Brooklyn gave a lecture on the ill that beset a man with poor teeth.

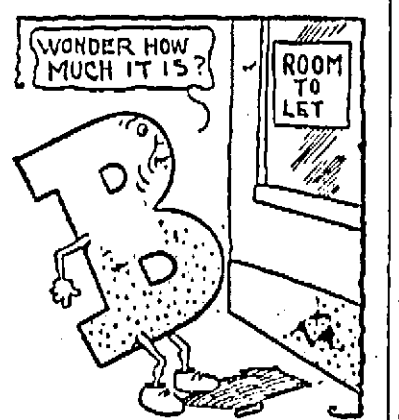

"In no art or science," said Doctor Hyatt, "has such progress been made as in the art and science of dentistry in the last twenty-five years. The most important discovery was made only recently. It is that the health of the entire body depends on healthy teeth and healthy surrounding tissue. It has been discovered that the dental end of a nerve can manifest itself in the eye, causing temporary blindness; that it can manifest itself in the ear, causing temporary deafness, and it can manifest itself in the muscles, causing temporary paralysis and insanity."

She Changed Her Mind

By CORA THOMSON

The little girl on the speckled broncho gave a little cry of pleasure as the small cavalcade rounded a turn in the hills and came abruptly into a little valley. It was too small for a canyon and too big for a gully, great, flat-topped rocks were scattered about and among them a pounding stream tore its way.

"How pretty!" she said. "What's its name?"

The man on the horse beside her glanced at her a trifle whimsically before he spoke.

"Its name befits its looks," he told her. "It's Rattlesnake gulch!"

Even as he had expected, Eleanor Meade's face twisted into a little frown of disgust. "How horrid!" she shivered. "That's the trouble with your west—you won't even let one enjoy the really pleasant spots, but spoil them with some fantastic name!"

"It isn't fantastic in this case," Norwood told her as they drew rein, waiting for the others. "It's a solemn truth. Time was when Rattlesnake gulch was a decidedly dangerous spot because of its inhabitants that resided beneath those flat stones and sunned themselves thereon by the dozens. They practically are cleared out now. By the way, it is the extreme northern limit of the ranch."

Bert Norwood swung around in his saddle as their horses plodded slowly on and waved his hand at Rattlesnake gulch.

"There's a story about that very place," he said, "seeing it brought it to my mind, and then I knew the fellow. When he first came out here from the east he wasn't very bad and he wasn't very good. He hadn't run up against any of the hard things of life and he was selfish because he was ignorant and raw. He had never had to think of anybody but himself and his own pleasure. He really didn't amount to very much. At that time Rattlesnake gulch had a thriving and lively population and this trail was given a wide berth. You see, if by any chance one went over the edge, the only way to get out was to cross the gulch and the stream and get up to the other side, where it isn't so steep, and naturally nobody wanted to make the trip, because there wasn't one chance in a hundred he'd get through unharmed. Well, one day Smith, this chap I'm telling you about—was on the upper trail around the hills. Down below him he saw a pony with a swaying rider whom he recognized as Pete, one of the cow-punchers at the ranch where he was staying. Pete was the regulation bad man—a worthless, no-account, ugly brute, who had been particularly obnoxious to Smith ever since his arrival. A man can be brave in a good cause, but when it comes to risking a wretched death for the sake of something worse than nothing it calls for a brand of heroism and self-sacrifice Smith never had."

"He reasoned coldly that he probably was much more needed in the progress of the world than Pete, but he still stared down into the distant gully. To his disgust, he found he absolutely could not ride off and leave Pete to get off the best way he could. At first he argued that he would gallop to the ranch and send some of Pete's associates to rescue him. He, Smith, certainly owed Pete nothing in the way of charity. It was only common sense. Then Smith found he was guiding his mount down the lower trail mechanically."

Later he realized it was the first time in his life that the common law of humanity had clinked him and said: "Your turn to help!" and had brought him face to face with the fact that you can't run your life for yourself alone. And so—well, he went down into Rattlesnake gulch and carried Pete across the stream and up the other side and nothing happened. He wasn't fated to die by means of Rattlesnake gulch. That's all. But it really changed Smith's life doing that. It made a man of him. I mean it made him realize that there were other people in the world beside himself."

Eleanor Meade was looking into the deepening shadows. "Yes," she said. "There are fine things like that happening out here, of course. I'd like to know that man. Where?"

"Oh, he left this region long ago," said Norwood. "There are the others!" The rest of the party came galloping up—Norwood's sister, Eleanor's cousin and the two men.

"Say, Jimmie," Wharton called out, "ripping place back there you've got on your ranch, Bert! That Rattlesnake place. Your sister was just telling us about the time you were fool enough to cross it for a worthless loner working for you! I thought you used to have some sense!"

"I didn't suppose Alice knew about it," Norwood stammered to cover his wrath and confusion. "Anyhow, the story was so exaggerated. There was nothing in it!"

"Why didn't you tell me it was you?" Eleanor Meade demanded as they rode on. "Maybe after all, Bert, the west is good for one. Maybe it would be good for me. It might teach me things, too, for I'm pretty useless when I think about it."

"If you'd only stay," Norwood breathed in sudden renewed hope. "I—I need you so, Eleanor, I can't let you go dear!"

"I never really wanted to go," the girl confessed as he helped her from her saddle. "Now York doesn't seem very important, with you—out here! I—I guess I'm going to stay Bert after all!"

Do You Spend Enough For Advertising To See Any Definite Returns

Do you know what you should spend for advertising to assure your sufficient returns to justify any increase?

You can answer these questions for yourself if you will fill in the blanks. Take out your pencil and do it right now. How much do your gross sales amount to in one year?

PUT DOWN THE SUM HERE.

How much does it cost you to sell this amount?

What per cent do you estimate is the selling expense?

What is your net profit?

PUT IT DOWN HERE.

Now multiply the figures representing your gross receipts by two then point off two figures with a decimal point and you have what would be considered a fair Advertising Appropriation.

PUT IT DOWN HERE.

Do You Spend That Much Money Per Year For Advertising?

You can. It's only 2%. Many merchants spend 5% in locations where competition is hot. 2% is a fair average. It's not too much. Yet it is enough to show a big increase. You don't doubt but that an amount such as your figure represents would increase your business one-fifth, making your profits one-fifth greater. These increased profits will figure just twice your advertising appropriation if you are clearing 20%. If you clear more your gain is more.

Of course, every business has its peculiarities, but our advertising department has peculiar problems of all kinds to solve every day—it can help you.

CONSERVATION.
Conservation has become a household word, and people discuss the conservation of natural resources as glibly as they do the weather, the Standard Oil company, or the Sugar combine.
The Ballinger-Pinchot case which has attracted so much attention, has added political significance to the question and made it a prominent feature of the campaign. Many people have come to believe that the public domain has been robbed by designing pilferers, and that drastic action is necessary to preserve what is left.
Like all other questions, this question has two sides. In this instance one side has been freely discussed, and a verdict rendered, while the other side has been ignored and abandoned.
The public domain represents untamable property, so far as individual rights are concerned, and in its natural state is of no value except as a national asset.
The people, through their government, never develop these natural resources, and but for the investment of private capital and private enterprise they would continue to lie dormant, as they did for many generations.
This class of resources include mineral, waterways, and timber, with here and there a patch of land not yet thrown open to settlement by government lottery.
The government has been liberal with its land in dealing with the railroads, but the people have not suffered in consequence, because the deserts and waste places have responded to the touch of civilization, and an army of people have shared in the benefits; in fact, all the people have profited by being placed in close touch with all parts of the country.
The precious metals hid away in the mountains have remained in hiding indefinitely had not the prospector and the men behind him with money, been encouraged to explore and develop his findings.
The government has never engaged in the mining business, and never will until socialism gains control, and then anything is likely to happen.
What is true of mining is true to a large extent of the waterways which would continue to be useless but for private development.
The timber problem, which has been made prominent through the Ballinger-Pinchot escapade, merits perhaps more attention than it has received, and yet it is an open question whether timber utilized for the benefit of the people is not of more practical value than the sentiment to park the land and preserve it.

Timber culture should be encouraged, not only in the west, but in all parts of the country, but to what extent the forests should be conserved is a debatable question.
THE LANDSLIDE.
The landslide which engulfed conservative republicanism in the middle west, has extended to the east coast states, and Maine is the first to take up the democratic banner. Other states will follow and surprises are in order.
The public mind is much in the same condition that it was some twenty years ago. The same spirit of restlessness prevails, and now, as then, the watchword is "a change." That it is stated to occur is no longer a question of doubt.
The new generation is progressive, and like all preceding generations is slow to learn except through experience.
If the next House of Representatives is not democratic, it will be democratic in tendency and radical changes will satisfy the most enthusiastic clamorers.
The business world is already shaping itself to meet prospective conditions, for there is always an element of uncertainty which capital anticipates and prepares for.
The automobile industry is already badly demoralized, and thousands of men are seeking other employment.
The luxuries of course are the first to feel depression, but the necessities soon follow suit and enforced idleness is the result.
A change of government policy, and the conduct of public affairs is sometimes desirable, and it may be at the present time, but the people pay the freight when these changes occur, and the bill is sometimes heavy.
A democratic victory means a repetition of the experiences of 1893-94, in the world of business and finance, and while this in the end might not be an unmitigated evil, the era of stagnation is not pleasant to contemplate.

CROP REPORTS.
Our estimate of crops is based on largely on local conditions, that they have but little value as a basis. It is interesting to note the nation's resources at the present time, as the harvest has been secured with the exception of corn, and this cereal is out of danger in the corn belt.
A summary of the crop reports gathered from reliable statistics, is encouraging, and if present prices are maintained, represent a value of farm products close to $3,000,000,000, a figure which exceeds the stock and bond value of all the railroads in the country. This wealth is so evenly distributed that it is shared by every state in the Union. The report follows.
"At present indications the cereal crops will contribute not far from 5,000,000,000 bushels to the country's gross agricultural income. The United States has never had an equally good oats crop, and but once before so large a corn crop as it now promises with no heavy frost up to the middle of the month.
"Our wheat yield this year is barely a ten-year average, and a showing of 67,000,000 bushels below that of 1909 looks rather meagre for a population of over 90,000,000 people. But the average of the two crops of 1909 and 1910 exceeds 700,000,000 bushels. A consumption of an average of six bushels a head would require 540,000,000 bushels, thus leaving an average of 160,000,000 bushels for reserve, seed and export. Although that does not afford a large margin, it does relieve the country of anxiety as to its year's bread supply."
Should a season of depression develop, the wheat supply will be ample. When times are good people out more flour than when times are hard. The luxuries of course suffer the most, but during the panic of 1893, when the full dinner pail was abandoned for the soup house, the consumption of flour was less than three bushels per capita, while the supply of meat was far in excess of the demand.
It is among the possibilities that the cost of living will be materially reduced during the next twelve months. What we may have to live on may depend upon how intelligently we have practiced thrift and economy.

The tidal wave of reform has engulfed the pockets of the country, and a dozen of them are under indictment for conducting an alleged illegal combine. When Swift and Armour et al. are behind the bars, the farmer can drive his hogs to market in the good old fashioned way, and the price of bacon will be within reach of the most humble pocketbook.
The people who voted in favor of the two new bridges, voted intelligently, and were not unduly influenced, as no work was done either for or against the proposition. It is to be regretted that there is any question about the validity of the case. Of course if the bonds can not be floated the error must be corrected by another election. This would doubtless result in endorsing the action already taken as the spirit of progress is in the air and a disposition to boost is not lacking.
If the democratic party lost its identity at the primary election in Wisconsin, who benefited by the loss? This question is asked by an interested observer in Chicago. Give it up, my friend. We have no democrats in Wisconsin. Our motto is, "One flag, one country, one man, whose magic power rejuvenates the dead." The democratic party has taken to the tail timber with plenty of stragglers as a camp following.
The business man who advertises invites you to trade with him, while the one who does not advertise should impress you with the fact that he does not care enough for your trade to ask for it.

Uncle Walt
THE POET PHILOSOPHER
By WALT MASON.
(Copyright, 1909, by George Mathew Adams.)
He gazed out through the prison bars, while strangers handed him cigars, and big bouquets, and things like those, and said: "This oppression grows! The humble toiler's in the 'south, and no one seems to care a whoop. The heartless tyrant sits in state, and puts the poor man in a cage. I held a city job for years, and earned enough to buy my beer, and shoes and such things for my wife; I thought I had that job for life, but then a tyrant mayor came in, and I saw grief and woe begin. He humiliated me, comrades, from my place! Because I didn't earn my pay fast! He showed me from my job away! He had the nerve to lay it down that people working for the town would have to earn the bones they drew; I balked at that, and so would you! He wanted, and destroyed my life; he robbed my children and my wife; he stole my blood and my jam; I shot him then, and here I am! My dear little child should give you pause; I am the martyr for your cause. Shall tyrants enrich, with iron boot the face of every poor galoot? Shall tyrants say that men must earn the bread that they like to burn? Ah, they may rob us of our rights and put us in distressing plight, and from our children take the bun—but we can always buy a gun!"

Heart to Heart Talks.
By EDWIN A. NYE.
TO A YOUNG GIRL—DON'T!
Some years ago a woman of my acquaintance married a man because she thought she was able to reform him. The man was a rake.
And there was the usual outcome—years of misery and at the end of it a divorce.
I have read in novels about the reformation wrought by wives of drunkards or shiftless or vicious husbands. I have seen the miracle enacted on the wings, but I have never yet known a single successful case in real life.
I do not say such a thing may not be done, but ninety-nine times out of a hundred it is a failure.
My dear young girl—
Do not attempt the impossible. If a man will not be a man for his own sake or for decency's sake he will not be one for your sake.
He might behave himself during the honeymoon; but, believe me, when the everyday harness of matrimony begins to bind him will kick over the traces.
Marriage does not change one.
There is no magic in the beautiful words of priest or preacher that will transform the character of a bridegroom.
You can "influence him?"
Yes; if he is started on the upward way you can help him immensely. If he is headed in the other direction your influence cannot and will not change the fiber of his makeup.
Depend upon it, you will have more influence over him before than after marriage.
Here is another thing:
Have you taken into account how much of strength, of patience and of sacrifice will be required of you?
Will your love for the man overcome the repugnance and growing contempt for his ways?
Or—
How long will he continue to love you once he feels he is bound to one who hates his habits and watches for his lapses? What then becomes of your influence?
Do not try the impossible.
It is better to go through life alone than to be bound to a brute or a weakling or a debauchee.
Why spoil your life and bring misery to those who love you by trying to perform a miracle?

IRRIGATION IN INDIA
English Government Is Redeeming Many Acres of Dry Land.
Powerful Recommendation of Irrigation Commission and Courageous Energy of Lord Curzon Needed for Ultimate Success.
London.—The Times of India gives some interesting facts regarding the work done by the Indian government in extending the irrigation system of the land. Of the Deccan system, it says:
"The Deccan schemes are of first-class importance and value. They make a vivid appeal to our imagination and sympathy. If we look at a rainfall map of India we see a large parched patch of country enveloping and Bijapur and parts of Nasik and Poona. Here the laborious cultivator has learned to look for drought and famine in one year out of three, and in a vast wild area a scanty and insufficient rainfall is as likely to be resolved as a plentiful watering. In the Deccan there is no question of watering a desert and bringing in a colony of people to enjoy the results. The cry for water comes from the people whose native homes are on the soil and who year after year sow their crops uncertain of the return, frequently having to sell their treasures and migrate in search of labor, in order to find the means of subsistence.
"The soil is rich and capable of bearing fine crops, and along its whole western border runs the mighty but-trass of the Ghats which brings down an unending deluge of water, sufficient to irrigate the land many times over. What more simple than to store water in the hills and deal it out through canals upon the thirsty plains? Yet the difficulties to be faced are some of the hardest in any irrigation problem in India. The construction of the great storage reservoirs in the Ghats proved extremely costly; owing to the conformation of the country, the alignment of canals from the best sites for storage works to the districts requiring water presented complications; and the fluctuations of rainfall in the plains seriously affected prospects of regular revenue.
"Government obtains returns for its outlay upon irrigation both directly, by payments made for the water service, and indirectly, by the increased wealth, and therefore increased taxable capacity, which it confers on the people.
"It needed the powerful recommendation of the irrigation commission and the courageous energy of Lord Curzon to insure the problem which the Deccan presents being boldly attacked and steadily pushed forward to solution. The commission found that of the soil in the Deccan which might beneficially be irrigated, 95 per cent. was without irrigation. In the secretariat of the government of Bombay now lies a new map of the Deccan upon which may be seen the results of the labors of the last seven years. Every catchment area in the Ghats has been investigated, and every possible site for a reservoir examined as the commission desired.
"Every square mile of the Deccan has been surveyed, the best alignments for canals in all directions have been sought out. The new map of the Deccan is covered with a maze of red lines and blue lines, shaded patches, dotted patches, showing the results of those labors. Financially, the engineers are able to show prospects of better results than were at one time believed possible. Most of their schemes show an estimated revenue of three or four per cent., and for all of these the government of India is now prepared to advance funds.
"It is an irony that the best soil in this region is in those parts which are farthest removed from the zones of regular rainfall. In the future, this topsy-turvy arrangement of nature will be of no consequence. The dry and thirsty districts of Ahmednagar and its neighbors have a latent capacity for becoming one of the richest wheat-producing tracts in India. When canals have made the country independent of the rainfall, even the Deccan ryot may forget the meaning of drought and the pain of turning his wife's bangles into rupees every third or fourth year.
"One of the greatest of the new projects is the Godavari river scheme. This is nearing completion, and several miles of its canals will be brought into use in the coming monsoon. The distributing channels will serve 240,000 acres of ground in Nasik and Ahmednagar. The whole catchment area surrounding the sources of the Godavari and its upper tributaries, the Darna and Kadwa, is brought under control for the benefit of the scheme. This represents an area of no less than 160 square miles."

ROCK COUNTY TELEPHONE CO.
Jackman Block.
Would you like to pay for a telephone and not be able to use it while your neighbor uses it and pays nothing?
That is what you do when you let a non-subscriber use your telephone.
He is enjoying the advantage of the whole telephone system without paying, but when you want the non-subscriber you have to go after him. You pay for the service but can't use it.
More than that, he keeps the lines busy so that others who are paying for the service can't get it when they want it.
Do you think it just?
Every call put in costs the telephone company money. The telephone company needs the money to improve the service. It must all come from those who use it. Do you want to pay for it all, or would you like to have the other fellow pay his share?
A telephone costs him no more than it costs you.

REGULAR SOLDIERS ARE ENCAMPED AT THE FAIR GROUNDS

Two Battalions of 27th Infantry, 400 Men, Arrived in the City This Noon.

Four hundred U. S. regulars, comprising two battalions of the 27th Infantry, arrived in Janesville shortly after twelve o'clock today and pitched their tents at the fair grounds. The detachment is in command of Col. W. L. Pitcher and is enroute from Sparta, Wis., to Ft. Sheridan, Ill. They made the march from Sparta this morning and will remain in camp here tonight, leaving at seven in the morning for Delavan. Fifteen four-mule teams and supply wagons make up the wagon train and the detachment also has a platoon of twenty-five men with a machine gun. Many lined the streets to see the regulars march through on their way to the fair grounds but were disappointed as the line of march took them from the county house across country to the camp. It is probable that many will visit the grounds this evening.

OBJECT TO SALE OF STONE FROM QUARRY

City Officials Find However That Transactions Objected to Are Lawful.

For a time yesterday, the stone quarry and the products thereof occupied the limelight and it seemed as though something was about to break in civic circles. The matter has been smoothed over, however, and affairs are still in statu quo. Since the quarry has been running full blast, a great quantity of what is known as No. 2 crushed stone has accumulated at the pit. All of it could not be used in the street improvements now being made and Supt. Dullin made arrangements to dispose of part of it to Contractor Hager who used it in the construction of the new central station of the Wisconsin Telephone company. For this stone the contractor paid something over the price now received for that used in the street improvements. This amount, as has been customary, was placed to the credit of the city. About 74 yards had been hauled when the matter came to the attention of City Attorney Maxfield and Mayor Curie who ordered the sales to cease as it was claimed they were unlawful. This action would have delayed work on the new building for some time as other stone could not readily be secured. Accordingly, other legal advice was secured and it was finally determined that the transactions were in no way unlawful. This is where the matter stands at the present time.

TO RECLAIM GIRLS.

Atlanta, Ga.—A band of sweet-spirited Georgia women have built and equipped at Hapeville the only institution in the south for the reclamation of girls who have taken the first step upon the downward path. The home is for women and girls practically what the reformatory is for boys. It is in this home alone that girls and women may be detained against their will. The home is the only place in the southern section of the country to which courts may send girls who would otherwise receive prison sentences. It is the only institution into whose keeping a mother may commit a daughter for whose future she fears.

The doors of the institution were opened less than six months ago, but the capacity of the institution is already taxed to accommodate those for whom admittance is applied. The sleeping rooms have been taxed to their uttermost, and cots have been placed on the verandas and in the halls and a cottage, located a short distance from the main building, is now being fitted out as sleeping quarters. There are now 30 girls being cared for in the home, which is situated in the midst of a grove of shaded trees and is surrounded by a tract of 60 acres of fertile farm land.

He has announced that a baseball quartet, made up of White, Artie Hoffman, Addie Jones and Jimmy Sheckard are to do ten weeks on the vaudeville stage. The odd thing about the quartet is that they can sing, really sing, as well as play baseball. They are to sing several songs composed by White and a vaudeville manager has offered them the opportunity they seek.

TO MAKE PAPER CHEAPER

The Government is Spending $44,000 to Make Experiments in the White Product.

Wood pulp and paper making experts in the government employ have begun preparations for what probably will be the most thorough going investigation ever made looking towards a solution of the white paper problem. Congress made two appropriations, amounting to $44,000, for wood pulp experiments.

The experiments are to be practical in every detail, and will be carried out on a commercial scale. This feature is made possible largely through the co-operation of the American Paper and Pulp association, which will work with the government in getting the results which are hoped for.

That part of the experiments which is not necessary to carry on in the commercial plants will be conducted in the new products laboratory of the forest service at Madison, Wis. William L. Hall, assistant forester in charge of this branch of work, has returned to Madison after a trip to this city to confer with other officials of the department concerning the investigation.

The demand for this extensive investigation into the manufacture of paper pulp from American woods other than the fast dwindling spruce was brought about partly out of the increased consumption of products by the paper using industries and partly because of the prohibition of the export of pulp wood out from crown lands by several of the Canadian provinces. To insure a permanent supply of paper pulp for the making of news, wrapping and other cheaper grades of paper it seems certain that this country must depend principally upon the conservation and economical utilization of the forests within its borders.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

DO YOU laugh?

No, that's not a funny question. If you think it is, just pause a moment and look over your acquaintance, and I'm sure you'll find that there are mighty few of them who really do laugh.

Most people smile, and once in awhile chuckle or giggle, but the hearty, natural, unrestrained laugh that makes you want to laugh too, even if you don't know what the joke is—well, that's about as rare as a man who doesn't measure success by money or a woman who doesn't judge other women by their clothes.

And because of its rarity, the gift of laughter is an invaluable social asset.

A man was telling me recently how he happened to spend an evening at a summer boarding house where there were half a dozen girls and not a man but himself.

He told how he was introduced to the group, and what nice girls they were, and what a shame it was there weren't some nice men to amuse them.

"Did you see any of them again?" I asked.

"Yes, I was back there the next week and I took one of them to my home," he said.

It was an interesting opportunity to inspect the psychology of a man's choice, and find out just why, with the pick of six, he chose that one.

I put the question, "Why did you choose that particular one? Was she the prettiest?"

He considered a moment.

"No, I don't think so. I guess it was just because she laughed the most at my attempts at wit."

You see.

Laughter is an oil for the social relations.

In a crowd on an ocean voyage, I noticed one woman whom everyone seemed to like to talk to. I watched and listened and found it was not because she was extraordinarily witty or amusing but because she always laughed at the proper place with a heartiness and spontaneity that made her companions feel that they must be extraordinarily witty and amusing.

Maybe you don't find it easy to laugh. You are afraid your laugh is unattractive.

Then make it musical. Learn to laugh prettily. It can be done just as an unattractive voice can be modulated into harmonious tones.

Listen to your own laugh and conscientiously attempt to make it more pleasing. If you can afford it, go to a singing teacher and ask him to teach you how to laugh.

Don't let it make you self-conscious. Don't be affected.

Just learn to laugh well enough so that you aren't afraid to, so that you aren't self-conscious, and then cultivate a disposition to be genuinely and easily amused, and you will have a social talent that will do much to make you welcome everywhere.

WEEDS AND SEEDS.

THE MARY RUSSELL.

"Funny thing," said the small boy to me when weeding the lawn, "how much easier it is to know weeds than to know seeds."

Now why, do you suppose? It has always been a mystery to me. You plant good seeds and they grow weeds and the weeds will choke them out. If you don't work overtime grubbing them out, even then there will be both weeds and good seeds which will have to be persistently reseeded if you are to have the smooth, velvet look so desirable in grassy banks and lawns.

You will have to see that there is enough water and not too much. You must use the lawn mower judiciously. Every day and every hour you must persist if you wish to succeed.

Does not that sound like a chapter on character building? We are just human gardens after all. The good has to be worked for. Not spasmodically, but persistently.

Good deeds and good thoughts, high purposes and noble resolves for each day in the week and each hour in the day. It is not possible to neglect to water the lawn three days out of four and keep it in good condition. It is not possible to have "Sunday morals" and hope to grow into a noble man or woman.

Just enough and not too much watering of good resolves will work best. The people who overdo the thing fall miserably. One cannot be too good, but one can think himself or herself the quintessence of goodness and then they are either turning yellow or running to seed. It's true to bring out the lawn mower and turn off the water for a period.

We must keep it in season and out of season if we would be successful; either as gardeners or character builders. Even the letting alone is done with thought. We are prone to be overzealous in both branches of gardening.

We will the soil so vigorously at times that even the best seed will not grow. We fertilize till the small tender plants are killed by overfeeding. So with the youthful virtues.

Over-fertilizing is but a name for bragging when it comes to human gardens. We older people are so anxious that the next generation should be perfect that we forget that even virtues should be allowed time to germinate. They have to sprout, as it were, before they become strong, well-rooted plants in the garden.

We get into the century plant class ourselves before we know right from wrong definitely, and so there is no chance of making mistakes—and even then we make them. Why, then, so much intolerance with the struggles of the young people?

This constant supervision and constant scolding of adults is all wrong. I asked a child to tell me his name. He was a bright little fellow, not yet three years old. He looked up and smiled.

"My name is Jimmy Don't," he said. When I looked a little puzzled his mother explained that he heard the word "don't" so often connected with his name that he thought it was part of it. That was funny—but sad, too. Why should a child be so named? A little firmness and an understanding that mother means what she says, and that she does not say too much, and children will not need the constant reiteration of the word which is synonymous to them for a thwarting of childish desires.

Each must work in his own little garden plots as seemeth best. We all mean well—but you remember the place that Ted Saunders said was "full of them kind of people." See that you do well also. Make some "don'ts" for your own use and forget to use them for the child. Be kind and firm and generous and just, and your gardening will succeed. Sounds easy, doesn't it?

CALL RALPH JOHNSTONE
NEW KING OF THE AIR

Outdoes Harmon in Both Duration and Distance Flights—Breaks World's Accuracy Record.

Boston, Sept. 13.—Flyers of the air at the Harvard-Boston meet broke one world's record and two American marks.

Ralph Johnstone, in a Wright biplane, made two marks in accuracy, duration and distance events.

An achievement no less marvelous, was a flight of Claude Grahame-White of England, in which he went twice to Boston light and return from the field, a distance of 23 miles in 34 minutes, 15 seconds, or almost a mile a minute for the entire distance.

Johnstone remained in the air three hours, four minutes, and forty-four and two-tenths seconds, which broke the American record of Clifford B. Harmon of New York by one hour, ten minutes, and thirty seconds. On the same trip he covered 97 miles, 4,665 feet, which is likewise a new American record, bettering Harmon's mark by some seven miles.

Descending from his long journey Johnstone planted his car almost exactly over the flag in a test for accuracy, his seat being but five feet, four inches from the flag, which made a new world's record for accuracy in landing on skids.

Glenn H. Curtiss failed to secure the desired results with a new motor in his flyer and abandoned his intention of trying for the Boston light $10,000 prize.

The maximum penalty for each violation of the Sherman act is a fine of $5,000 or imprisonment for one year, or both.

Charge of Conspiracy.

The indictments charge that all of the defendants have engaged in a conspiracy to restrain trade.

The indictments cover 125 pages of typewritten matter. They go into every angle of the packing industry in this country and contain the allegation that 85 per cent. of the fresh meat consumed in the eastern, western and middle southern states comes directly from the companies controlled by the defendants. The proportion of each concern in this trade is given as follows: Swift group of houses, 47 per cent.; Armour group, 40 per cent.; Morris group, 13 per cent.

Armour Claims Low Profits.

J. Ogden Armour, who stands at the head of what is generally considered the largest meat concern in this or any other country, issued a statement through Attorney Levy Mayer bearing on the indictments.

He declared that he regretted that the indictments had been returned at this time and said that the packers had suffered a great deal through misrepresentation. This, he declared, will be largely remedied when the present case comes to trial, as it will be shown that the meat business has been conducted along legitimate lines, and that the average profit has been not more than 2½ per cent. on the total investment. Mr. Armour's statement was the only one of any length that was issued by any of the indicted men.

No Bench Warrants Issued.

No bench warrants were asked and immediately after the grand jury had handed in the indictments it adjourned for the day. It is expected that the indicted men will appear in court and give bond, but if not, warrants for their arrest will be given to the United States marshal. The amount of the bond has not been fixed, but it will probably be about $10,000.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By Rose Terrill.

If you must "shabby" do your hobbling gently. There are extremes in even this extreme style. The skirt which gives a little liberty and yet has the appearance of being drawn in at the knees is quite as effective as the one which is actually too narrow to walk in comfortably.

A foundation skirt over which is draped a filmy affair which is confined at the knee by a band of embroidery is the rich oriental costume may be fashioned in such a way as to be very "shabby" in appearance, but still have a small degree of comfort.

If you are anxious to be what the mod calls "stylish" do not go to great extremes. The woman who upholders her topknot till it looks like a skin for a mistress's shop is wide of the mark in the world of fashion. The same effort and the same curls and puts used with moderation and a regard for symmetry will do much to place her in the list of fashion.

The girl who is wise will search the shops for lengths of trimming which are not very expensive, and then use her fertile brain and expert fingers to make of it a thing of beauty by embroidering all over it with colored silks and bits of gold thread. A glass bead or the delicately cut mock jewels which are found at all fancy goods stores will give it an ornate touch which will put it in the first ranks as a decoration.

The girl who has mastered the stencil has a new field open to her this winter. It is stenciling thin goods for over dresses. A charming gown of thin, very pale brown silk is one of the soft qualities was draped with children of a deep cream tone. Around the edges of the lower hem of the over dress was stenciled a border of conventionalized acanthus leaves. The result was a very elegant and deep.

effect was very charming.

Some combine the stencil with hand-oriental or Japanese stitches in silk to make very effective trimmings.

With the returning of the cool fall days comes the thought of winter and its cares. Now is the time to look over the fur and take stock of winter clothing. If they have been well cared for this will not take long. Study the material you have in hand before making purchases of more goods and trimmings. It is sometimes possible to greatly reduce expenses in this way.

All the undergarments that can be made good for your own use mend and put in good condition. The outgrown garments should be sent at once to some one who will make use of them. It may save much worry if this is done early enough for the one who administers the finances in a home to be able to count upon them.

Clothes that can be remade should be cleaned and pressed and carefully studied. Sometimes it is worth while to take great pains even with old clothes, but more often it is not worth the trouble to spend time over them. If we all believed that "anything worth doing is worth doing well," we would, some of us, never have time to draw a long breath. Some work must be skipped. A dress which is merely intended to last a short time may be finished with much less care than the one which is to last, new material. One must use judgment and know how and when to skip the work. I do not advise being slovenly and slack in any way, but much of the fine finishing of garments takes more time than the work itself. Be sure of the fit and hang of clothes. Many a handsome garment has been ruined by being too long in the back when it should have been round. Many an ill-fitting pair of shoes has given a beautiful and expensive suit a ready-made air. Be careful of those details in the poorest garment and if you are neat you will look well dressed.

If you advertised now and people learned that your store was a good store for PARTICULAR reasons, would they buy of you next week and next month and next year? Direct results from advertising are not essential to advertising success.

SOCIETY WEDDING IN MONROE MONDAY
Miss Ethel Churchill Married at Five O'clock Last Evening to James W. Watson of Madison.
(Special to the Gazette.)
Monroe, Wis., Sept. 12.—Miss Ethel Churchill of this city, daughter of Mrs. Amelia Churchill, was married last evening at 5 o'clock at her home to James W. Watson of Madison. The officiant was very quiet, the guests including only the immediate relatives, university friends of the bride and groom and the B. B. club, of which the former is a member. Rev. H. A. Minor, formerly pastor of the First Congregational church in Madison, spoke the words which united this prominent young couple for life. Following the service in informal luncheon was served the wedding guests. Both Mr. and Mrs. Watson are graduates of the university at Madison, the bride graduating with the class of 1908. She is also a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. The groom belongs to the Kappa Sigma and Tau Beta Pi fraternities. Both are very popular in town and gown circles in Madison. Miss Churchill is a talented pianist and since returning from the university has given piano instruction at her home.
The bride and groom left last evening for a camping trip to Upper St. Croix in the northern part of the state and upon their return will locate in Madison where Mr. Watson is assistant professor in the electrical engineering department of the state university.
They were the recipients of many and costly gifts. Several intimate friends of the bride and groom from Madison, Superior and Columbus were present at the ceremony.
Diplane to Exhibit.
Because of an explosion at Toledo, Ohio, last week, the airship that was booked to appear here in exhibition flights at the Green county fair had to be cancelled, but in its place the fair management has gone to a greater expense to get a French biplane operated by Capt. Mattery to exhibit here. The machine has two sets of wings and was the kind of machine favored by the board of directors in the first place but on account of the great expense was supplanted by the airship.
Lightning Struck Home.
During the electrical storm that prevailed here, Sam Stauffer's home in the First ward was struck by lightning in the west gable and spread in three directions. An electric light meter in the east end of the house was torn apart, severing the light connections. Mr. and Mrs. Stauffer were sleeping in a room next to the one in which the meter was kept, but were not shocked, though considerably scared.

WIFE GIVEN CHANLER WEALTH.
Attorney in New York Admits Trans-action—Refuses to Tell Amount.
New York, Sept. 13.—The first admission from an authoritative source that there had been financial differences between Robert W. Chanler and his bride, Mme. Lina Cavallieri, who at this time are on opposite sides of the ocean, was made by Sidney Hurris, Mr. Chanler's counsel, when he was asked if there had been a contemplated agreement between Mr. Chanler and Mme. Cavallieri.
"There was," replied the attorney, "but I will not say how much money was involved in the agreement. That is a matter that may come out later, but we are hoping that this unpleasant matter may be settled without any litigation."
"Mr. Chanler still loves Mme. Cavallieri; that is, he still thinks he loves her," said the lawyer. "Aside from this financial difference they are on good terms."

SOLDIERS TO BE TESTED OUT.
General Woods Will Find Out What They Know About Real War.
Washington, Sept. 13.—General Wood, chief of staff of the army, has determined to ascertain just what the American soldier knows about fighting. He wants to see how much of this theoretical knowledge they can apply practically.
Orders were issued to inspectors generals and department commanders to put the men through practical tests. The infantrymen will be required to know how they can handle the rifle and bayonet, the cavalrymen will be put to sword tests, the officers will be required to prepare field maps and surveys.
All these tests will be under conditions approximating as closely as possible actual conditions arising in times of conflict and war.

UPHOLDS CREW OF FERRY NO. 17.
Pere Marquette Chief Declares Res-cuers Did All They Could.
Detroit, Mich., Sept. 13.—Superintendent W. D. Trump of the Pere Marquette railroad, in an interview, came to the defense of the crew of ferry No. 17, who have been criticized for not rescuing more of the crew of the ill-fated car ferry No. 18, which sank in Lake Michigan Friday with a loss of 28 lives.
"Captain Russell and the crew of No. 17 did all that men could do in the emergency," said Superintendent Trump. "In the heavy seas that were rolling it would have been impossible for any steamer to come alongside the doomed vessel. The fact that two men of No. 17's crew lost their lives in the first boat that was lowered shows that the rescuers were not lacking in nerve."

Passenger Train on Hocking Valley Is Ditched by Broken Rail.
Toledo, O., Sept. 13.—Three persons were killed and 12 more or less seriously injured when Hocking Valley passenger train No. 38 was wrecked between Le Moyne and Cummings near here. Names of dead: George Millhouse, Columbus, O., engineer of locomotive; L. C. Barker, Columbus, O., road foreman of engine; and G. T. De Vilbiss, Columbus, superintendent of motive power.
It is reported that the wreck was due to collapse of parts of locomotive which was of new design and being tested. Officials, however, state the wreck was due to a broken rail.

Comfort Before Art.
Architecture is a lost art. Today we need only hygienic, comfortable buildings. Our modern cities are ugly, but we do not notice it. They suit the modern state of mind and the modern conditions of life.—Munch-Kunst.

Value of Seaweed.
California has been first in the field to recognize the value of seaweed, San Francisco ships annually to China $100,000 worth. This article is a good winter food for oxen, sheep and pigs. In bad times in Ireland it forms a staple food for the peasantry of the west coast. Some of the beneficent preparations in use today from seaweed are iodine and bromine, from which we Deserved Punishment.

Value of Olive Oil.

It has been said that olive oil is good for some people to take all the time and for all people to take some of the time. It is a sovereign remedy for stomach trouble. It fills out the hollows and builds up the system and relieves aches and pains and the twinges of rheumatism.

ENDS MISERY FROM INDIGESTION OR A SICK, SOUR, GASSY STOMACH

A little Diapieson makes your out-of-order stomach feel fine in five minutes.

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer from indigestion, dyspepsia or out-of-order stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking some Diapieson.

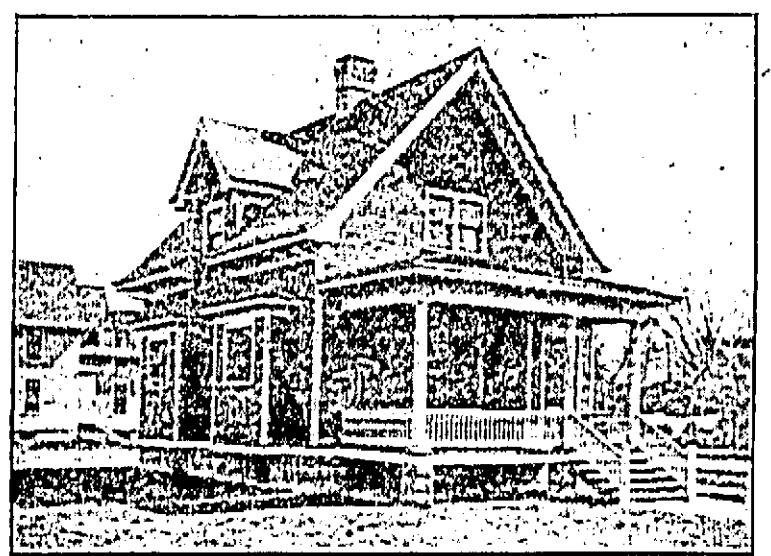

If your stomach is lacking in digestive power, why not help the stomach to do its work, not with drastic drugs, but a reinforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach.

People with weak stomachs should take a little Diapieson occasionally, and there will be no more indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, sour risings, gas on stomach or belching of undigested food, flatulency, dizziness or sick stomach, and, besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your system with noxious odors. All these symptoms resulting from a sour, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved in five minutes after taking a little Diapieson.

Go to your druggist and get a 50-cent case of Diapieson now, and you will always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will taste good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. They freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.
